1. Soldiers belonging to the Interior Guard until recently wore shoulder boards of violet color without arms insignia. Since the beginning of July 1954, various arms insignia have made their appearance, such as engineers and artillery.
2. This represents the same development as in the infantry, where during 1953 arms insignia had been observed. By now all arms insignia have been observed on infantry shoulder boards, including the circle traversed by an arrow which is supposed to be the insignia of anti-chemical units.
